PHOTOPLAY The Solution of THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY

The last chapter is the most important in any book, so the ladies say and we believe it; so is the last number of a serial story. Many have enjoyed all or some of the previous numbers of this serial and without seeing this the last number, the entire story would be incomplete. The following questions are answered: Do they find the missing million? Does Jimmy marry Florence? Who is the Butler? What has become of Hargrave? Where was the million found? Who won the ten thousand dollars for the best solution.

In addition to this number of the mystery, there will be run, the following comedies.

HOW SLIPPERY SLIM GETS SQUARE.....ESSANAY COMEDY
He gets the better of Pete this time.

BRANNINGAN'S BAND.....LUBIN COMEDY

A TROUBLESOME CAT.....LUBIN

DID NOT FORGET HIS OLD CHURCH

Though he Moved from Adams County Half a Century ago Mr. Wilson Leaves Money to Church of his Childhood Days.

Remembering two local churches after an absence of fifty years from this neighborhood, Samuel D. Wilson has left in his will $300 to the Great Conewago Church at Hunterstown, and $200 to the Marsh Creek Presbyterian church. Mr. Wilson died recently near Lexington, Illinois, and the trustees of the churches have been advised of the bequests.

Mr. Wilson was born and reared in the vicinity of the Marsh Creek church and attended that place during his early years, so that there is some explanation of his gift there, but no one is able to discover why he should have chosen the church at Hunterstown on which to bestow any money.

W. A. McIlhenny, of Lincoln avenue, wrote to Mrs. Wilson regarding her husband and she replied that he had died leaving an estate of $35,000, and that he had given no explanation for remembering the Adams County churches in his will.

Mr. McIlhenny recalls Mr. Wilson as a fellow member of Company C. Cole's Maryland Cavalry, which was recruited in Gettysburg and Emmitsburg. They served as comrades during the war and became very good friends, but Mr. Wilson left Adams County shortly after the close of the war and the two men had not seen each other since then.

Mr. Wilson continued farming after he went to Illinois, and that he prospered is shown by the amount of the estate which he left. The bequests came as most pleasant surprises to the trustees of both congregations, very few of whose members recall Mr. Wilson when he lived as a boy in this neighborhood.

TO GET INVITATION

Chance for High School Boys to Take Part.

Gettysburg High School will be invited to take part in an athletic event which the Pittston High Athletic Association is planning to be held at Pittston, Saturday, April 17. Ten silver loving cups have been selected as prizes for this event.

This contest is open to every high school, private high school, and academy in the state of Pennsylvania, the only conditions being that the contestant be a bona-fide student and have the official O. K. of the principal of his school.

This race has the indorsement of the citizens and business men of Pittston and indications point to many cities and towns from distant parts of the state being represented in this contest.

WERE UP IN TIME

College Boys out Early to Give Team a Send-off.

Residents of the North End of town had their late slumbers given a rude blow this morning between five and six o'clock when the college boys turned out in force to give their base ball team a suitable send-off to Princeton. Shooting and other forms of noise made sleep impossible. The team left at 5:55 over the Reading and were due to play this afternoon the first game between the two schools for a number of years. Coach Ira Plank announced that Howard would start the game and a victory is confidently expected by the collegians' adherents.

DAYLIGHT TOURS WILL COME HERE

New Idea in Lincoln Highway Events for this Summer. Studebaker Company will Bring Tourists through Gettysburg this Year.

H. W. Dunning & Co., of Boston, have arranged de luxe motor tours in brand new Studebaker Sixes, that leave Boston May, June and July, for the Panama exposition at San Francisco, over the Lincoln Highway and the Midland trail. The parties will stop in Gettysburg for several hours on their way to the exposition.

"Every Mile in Daylight", is the slogan of the tour, visiting all of the cities and places of interest on the way at an average of about 100 miles per day, with all hotel arrangements and every care of the itinerary provided for in advance.

The passengers will return by train, and another party going to San Francisco by train will return in the automobiles.

The chauffeurs will be thoroughly experienced men, chosen on their record and habits. The cars will average approximately 100 miles per day, not consuming more than five or six hours of actual driving. No baggage will be carried in the cars. A truck will follow after the party, carrying all baggage.

$85,000 LOAN WINS

Some Quibbling about the Amount to Be Spent.

Less than half of the normal vote was cast in Hanover on Tuesday when the citizens of that place approved the plan to erect a modern High School structure. It carried by a vote of 455 to 355.

The question was the proposed loan by the borough school directors for a sum sufficient to defray the necessary cost of such a structure. The directors have stated that it cannot be definitely known how much money will be required, but the vote will be on a loan of $85,000 which they have estimated will be an outside figure to cover cost of site, building, heating, furnishing and equipping the structure, and that only part of this loan will be used if it is found to be possible to acquire the site, building, and equipment for less, but they felt that it was wise to name an outside figure, otherwise, they might have proceeded with the work, if the loan should be approved, and not had sufficient funds to complete the building. The absolute cost will not be known until a site has been purchased and bids on a building and furnishings received.

HUNT MANAGERS FOR OTHER TEAMS

Hanover and Hagerstown on Search for Men to Take Care of their Nines. Frederick Signs a Manager. Local Benefits Planned.

"Every community has some people in it who wouldn't give a Buffalo nickle to see a cyclone", says the Hanover Independent in commenting upon that town's prospects for success in the Blue Ridge League, and continues by expressing the hope that the fans of their town will make possible the placing of a representative team in the league.

The directors of the team have decided to secure a player-manager for the nine and are now casting about for an eligible man. It is said that applications have been received from a number of players for positions. The getting in order of McAllister Park will be commenced immediately. "We can boast of the best laid out ball field in the circuit", comments the Independent.

J. M. O'Brien, better known as "Doc" O'Brien, a graduate of Mt. St. Mary's who for the past three years has managed pennant-winning and pennant-contending teams in Class D leagues, went to Hagerstown to-day from his home at Emmitsburg for a conference with Charles W. Boyer, who is promoting the Hagerstown club, relative to becoming manager of that team.

The managership of the Frederick Hustlers has been settled. Jack Morrison, pilot of last year's team, has come to terms with the management of the Frederick club and the deal was closed. The Shippensburg lad will report May 15th and get his men together. In the meantime he will be on the job looking for material.

Gettysburg's plans go along quietly but surely. Each day's practice on Nixon Field convinces fans more and more of the worth of the college team, and the general desire is that the most of the local school's team be kept here for the summer.

Among the ways to raise funds for the Gettysburg team will be a bazaar in May, and on April 6 the production of "Bought" in Xavier Hall. This play was given earlier in the year and proved one of the best home talent dramas offered in Gettysburg for a long while. It will likely draw the patronage that it, and the object for which it is to be given, deserve.

Hagerstown, Frederick, Chambersburg, and Martinsburg, are all in action preparing for the opening of the season which is now only a little more than two months distant. It is expected that formal and favorable action on Hanover's petition for membership will be taken in the very near future and the schedule will then be arranged and announced shortly afterward.

A pet name for the local town team is desired and various suggestions have been made. Walter's Theatre offers a liberal number of admission tickets for the most popular suggestion. In other years the Gettysburgians have been known in other towns as the "relic hunters", the "bullet chasers", and under various other names denoting Gettysburg's connection with the battlefield.

CAPTURE 117,000 MEN AT PRZEMYSL

600 Modern Guns Also Taken by Russians.

SOME FORTS STILL INTACT

Nine Generals and Staffs and 2500 Other Officers Made Captives. Opens Road to Czar.

Petrograd, March 24.—The Russian war office announced that 117,000 men were captured at Przemyśl. The war office statement follows:
"According to figures given by General Kusmanek, late commander at Przemyśl, the number of prisoners who surrendered to the Russians was nine generals and ninety-three officers of the general staff, 2500 officers and officials and 117,000 men.
"The number of guns and other war material captured are now being calculated."

The lack of official details from Przemyśl is said to be due to the heavy snowstorm, which broke down the telegraph lines.
It is reported, however, that nearly a quarter of the garrison had suffered from typhoid and scurvy. Although the rations were growing more and more limited, none but a few of the higher officers, up to the end of January, knew that actual starvation was impending.

The real condition of affairs was learned by the troops when an aviator, who was starting with messages for Vienna, was shot down by the Russians and fell within the defenders' line. After that there was much grumbling in the garrison and almost a mutiny. Some of the Austrians slipped through the lines at night and surrendered to the Russians.

The investing Russian forces increased the intensity of their bombardment and the strain on the defenders began to tell more rapidly during February. Many were rendered insane by privations and disease. The death list was very high.

Civilian inhabitants, who had been unable to escape when the siege began, swarmed about the forts begging food and refuge, but the commandant was unable to care for them. The death of two prominent generals in February from typhoid fever tended to weaken the determination of General von Kusmanek, commander of the fortress.

By the end of February actual famine prevailed; scarcely a living animal was left. For weeks virtually the only sustenance was obtained from small supplies of concentrated food-stuffs brought in by aeroplanes.

A council of officers daily considered the situation, but not until they were convinced that there was no hope of help from an Austrian relief column did they reach the decision to surrender.

The Russian authorities have received information to the effect that the defenses of Przemyśl are in good condition, notwithstanding the long siege and are capable of being put into working order immediately. Six hundred guns of the newest type were found in the fortress.

The highest importance is attached to the fall of Przemyśl by the Novoe Vremya. Likening the surrender of the Galician fortress to the fall of Metz during the Franco-Prussian war and the capitulation of Port Arthur in the Russo-Japanese war, the paper states that the last obstacle has now been removed to the Russian advance in Galicia and to the heart of the Carpathians.

"Thus is decided the fate of the whole Hapsburg empire, and consequently that of her ally, Germany." The Novoe Vremya continues: "There is nothing now to prevent the advance of Russian armies direct to Uzsok and Lwow Passes."

GREAT DAMAGE IN GALICIA

Cracow Places Loss at $1,250,000,000; Hundreds of Towns Looted.

Major General Sir William R. Robertson has been appointed chief of the British general staff to succeed Major General Sir A. J. Murray. No mention is made as to why Major General Murray has been removed. He has been chief of the general staff since 1914, and twice during the present war has been mentioned in reports by Field Marshal French. In September General French spoke of General Murray as having been one of those who had "worked day and night unceasingly. With the utmost skill, self sacrifice and devotion." In October General French named him to his roll of honor.

DEATH OF 3 WIVES LAID TO ENGLISHMAN

Accused of Drowning Women in Bathtub.

London, March 24.—Accused of the murder of three women, George Joseph Smith, in the Bow street court, heard Public Prosecutor Bodkin declare that he had made away with three of his wives, the crime in each case being committed shortly after he had married them.

Each of these women was found dead in her bath. The case has come to be known as the "brides in bath" case.

Smith, according to the police, was born in London, the son of an insurance agent, and is forty-five years old. He was married, according to the evidence at a preliminary hearing, under the name of John Lloyd, to Margaret Elizabeth Lofty, at Bath, last December.

The couple came to London, and the next morning the bride was found dead in her bath. The jury brought in a verdict of accidental death.

In February Lloyd was arrested and identified, the police say, as George Joseph Smith, who in November, 1913, had married at Portsmouth, Miss Alice Burnham, who a month later was found dead in her bath. In this case also a coroner's jury brought in a verdict of accidental death.

The police also have exhumed the body of Beatrice Mundy, who died in her bath, shortly after her marriage at Herne Bay, in July, 1912, to a man who gave the name of Henry Williams, and is believed by the police to be Smith.

Mr. Bodkin said that Smith had been married five times. His first wife was Caroline Beatrice Thornhill, who he had married in 1898, and who is now on her way to London from Canada.

"The case is remarkable," said the prosecutor, "for greed, which was the motive in the taking of these three lives. At the death of two of them £2800 ($14,000) was obtained, and the prisoner when arrested was in a fair way to obtain £700 ($3500) more."

SEVENTEEN BELGIANS SHOT

Executed by Germans After Being Found Guilty of Spying.

London, March 24.—"Seventeen Belgians, most of whom were young peasants, were shot at daybreak on Tuesday in the Ghent barracks, after having been found guilty by a court martial of espionage in the interest of the allies," says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from Amsterdam.

Admiral Drennan Dead.

Easton, Pa., March 24.—Rear Admiral Michael C. Drennan, U. S. N., retired, died suddenly from heart disease, aggravated by depression following the recent death of his wife. He entered the navy in 1863 as acting assistant surgeon and in 1899 was retired.

CHRISTIANS ARE SLAIN IN PERSIA

Many Persons Killed and Property Plundered.

THOUSANDS ARE IN FLIGHT

Fifteen Thousand Refugees in American Mission Are in Great anger. Torch Applied to Villages.

New York, March 24.—The Persian war relief committee, with headquarters in this city, received the following cablegram from Tiflis, Russia:
"All villages burned except three. Two Christian quarters of Urumiah plundered and a great many people killed. Women taken captives. Fifteen thousand refugees in the American mission. Great danger. The French mission has been destroyed. There are 10,000 refugees in Russia."

The message was signed by Aslanoff, a Russian contractor of Tiflis. Urumiah is in northwestern Persia, not far from the Russian border. A previous dispatch from Djulfa, Persia, received in New York on March 21, was to the effect that the Turkish consulate Urumiah, at the head of seventy Askaris, recently attacked the American mission there. Priests and deacons upon being ordered to leave were insulted and beaten. It was stated. Russian troops, it was said, had been sent for to save the lives of the Christians.

Urumiah has been in the throes of mob rule for weeks, according to reports received here by the Presbyterian board of foreign missions. A reign of terror in which marauders and bandits hold sway has driven tens of thousands from the city and into the outlying province and has sent other thousands to the protection of the American flag, which waves over the Presbyterian mission.

Ten thousand persons were housed in the mission three weeks ago, according to information received, and these refugees included almost the entire native Christian population of the city, between 4000 and 5000. The 200 or 300 American missionaries and teachers whose activities have been conducted under the board's supervision, and a heterogeneous aggregation of foreigners.

Danes, Swedes, Norwegians and other Europeans pressed beside Moslems in the headlong flight for life from the mob to the missions, according to reports. All, it was said, were accorded the protection of the American flag.

Urumiah is the center of a rich province of Persia. It was abandoned by the Russian forces early in the campaign.
The Christian quarters which were invaded, it was said, were occupied by colonies of native Christians who called themselves Nestorians and whose occupancy dated back more than 1500 years.

SUBMARINE SUNK BY MINE

German Craft Seen to Disappear in English Channel After Explosion.

London, March 24.—A German submarine is reported to have been destroyed by a mine in the English channel, off West Hastings. A dispatch to the Star from Hastings says:

"At 6 o'clock Tuesday morning two loud reports of firing or explosions were heard at West Hastings. Shortly afterward a German submarine was observed about three miles out, gliding eastward. The vessel was partly submerged and her deck was sea swept. Within a few minutes the submarine plunged suddenly beneath the water. She was not seen again."

"It is probable that she hit a mine and reports heard at West Hastings were the explosions of the mine and a subsequent explosion on the submarine."

GOLD FOR WAR MATERIALS

London Believes That Its Purpose of Sale of $7,025,000 Yellow Metal.

London, March 24.—The large sale of gold $1,405,000 ($7,025,000) announced by the Bank of England is confidently believed on the money market to have been for America for purchases of war materials made by the allies.

The drift of gold has had but little effect upon discounts, as the firmness of Paris exchange on London is taken to indicate that the gold will be transferred from Paris to London or credited to the Bank of England in order to offset the withdrawals now taking place.

Indian Woman Dies at Age of 105.

Toledo, O., March 24.—Mrs. Victoria Cadacat, 105 years old, died at the Ottawa county infirmary, near Oak Harbor. Mrs. Cadacat was a Chippewa Indian and was the last known of the native Ohio Indians of the full blood. Until ten days ago she lived alone in a cabin near Curtice.

Married Sixty Years.

Easton, Pa., March 24.—With many relatives and friends joining in the celebration, Mr. and Mrs. John Henry observed their sixtieth wedding anniversary. They received many hand some presents, including a purse of gold. Both persons are in excellent health.

GERMAN AIRMEN ATTACK FRENCH TOWNS

Seven Civilians Are Killed and Six Wounded.

Paris, March 24.—Zeppelins have bombarded St. Omar, Lillers and Estaires, in northern France, killing seven persons, three of them women, and wounding six, it was officially announced.

German aviators have added to the devastation wrought in Rheims by the bombardment of the city's artillery. They threw several bombs upon Rheims and killed three civilians at that place, says the official communication from the war office.

After striving for six hours to attack Paris under cover of darkness, a fleet of German Zeppelins sped away to the northward at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning, with a squadron of French aeroplanes in pursuit.

Bombs were dropped by the German airships upon a number of villages around Paris, but their explosions caused no deaths, although considerable damage was done.

The Zeppelins all escaped after their renewed attack on the capital.

Allies' Airmen Bombard Ostend.

Berlin, March 24.—Hostile aviators have again bombarded Ostend, the war office announced, killing and wounding several Belgian civilians. No damage was done to German military works, at which the bombs were aimed.

Northwest of Verdun a French aviator was shot down by the Germans. A French aircraft manned by two non-commissioned officers and forced to land near Freiburg, and the officers were made prisoners.

LONGER HOURS FOR WOMEN

Bill Permitting 63 Hours a Week Passes the Senate.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 24.—The Hackett bill, extending the working day and week for women employed in hotels, restaurants and boarding houses from nine hours a day and fifty-four hours a week to ten hours a day and sixty-three hours a week, was called up in the senate by Senator McNichol and was passed by the senate on third reading by a vote of 32 to 5.

The measure now goes to the house, where there appears to be little chance of its passage.

HEART INTEREST STORIES FROM TRENCHES AND BATTLEFIELDS

Dutch Steamer Held Up by German Air Craft—New York Girl With Retreating Army.

Territorial Gunner Has Miraculous Escape—Prince of Wales Actually on the Firing Line.

By mail and in dispatches from old world newspapers there have arrived in this country human interest stories of the great war in Europe. Some of the latest and best are here given:

"If I am lucky enough to survive this war I am afraid that I will be satisfied with very little, just a bed and a crust of bread," writes a twenty-year-old Belgian soldier to his brother, Paul L. Herz, a diamond cutter, of 281 Pearl Street, New York City. Young Herz is serving with the Fourth regiment of Belgian infantry.

The letter was made public by the Belgian relief committee. It bears a February date and in part reads:

"Although for more than six months we have lived like savages, remaining four nights without sleeping and eight days without washing, and have fallen into ice cold water and kept our wet clothes on for days, I have never felt the slightest attack of illness nor even had a cold. We live absolutely like Indians in the bushes and are occupied in all professions, such as carpenter, cook, digger, laundress and shoemaker.

"As for the life in the trenches, in which we spend four days out of every eight, it is at times frightful, especially as since quite awhile our trenches along the Yser near Neuport have been bombarded night and day. Shells and Budapest. We were right with the retreating army itself, and we are daily with the soldiers. We all shared alike. Then we reached Uzsok pass, in the Carpathians. There I saw a number of horrors that I don't like to think of.

"I saw two men, a woman and a twelve-year-old girl shot down by stray bullets while I was in the streets of Uzsok. The Russians caught up with us very close there, and down in the town we could look up on the mountain tops near by and see the shells bursting almost over us. I was an eyewitness of the fierce encounter of Uzsok pass.

"After that we tramped on in the same direction toward Budapest and Vienna. We took turns walking and riding in carts. Clothing and the few things we could snatch up as we left our homes we carried with us. For more than two weeks this terrible strain kept up. At one town we stopped for a rest, but there was an outbreak of cholera, and again we started on our flight. At last we reached a railroad and were transported in freight cars to Budapest. I saw some things so horrible that I will never speak of them.

"I have twenty cousins, all in the Austrian army. The Gallicians did not want war at all, but, once in it, they said: 'We will win. We must win.' And that is still their cry and their spirit. In a letter I have just received from Budapest I am told that my uncle, forty-two years old, has not been called to the colors and that conditions are very good. My relatives have received mail from the garrison at Przemyśl by the aeroplane post. They say the garrison is holding out splendidly."

Miss Zwilllich left New York last May to visit relatives in Boroslav. She was forced to leave nearly all of her clothing behind in Boroslav. When she reached Vienna she was cared for by the American consul there. In Vienna she spent some weeks making cigarettes for the soldiers and then volunteered for the Austrian Red Cross.

A Miraculous Escape.

"I am now permitted to state that the artillery attached to the East Lancashire division of territorials was sharply engaged on the Suez canal during the fighting of Feb. 3 and Feb. 4," writes an English correspondent.

"The behavior of the men under fire and the skill with which the guns were served were considered worthy of very high praise.

"An officer controlling the fire of one of the territorial batteries in these engagements displayed conspicuous gallantry. In order to find the ranges with the greatest possible accuracy he climbed a date palm tree near by and remained there an hour while the position was bombarded with shrapnel. When the fire became too hot he took up a fresh position in another palm tree and remained there till the close of the battle.

"One territorial gunner had a remarkable escape. A shrapnel bullet assailed down the barrel of the gun he was serving and flattened itself against a part of the breech mechanism without doing any damage either to man or gun."

"Hobson's Choice."

Alfred Capus, co-editor of the Figaro, in a lecture on "The Press During the War" gave the following as a typical dialogue between the censor and an editor over the telephone:

About midnight the censor said:

Imaginary Itis.

Sorrow itself is not so hard to bear as the thought of sorrow coming. Airy ghosts that work no harm do terribly us more than men in steel with bloody purposes.—Aldrich.

"It would be very nice of you, monsieur, to suppress these few lines. I ask you as a personal favor."

The editor then demanded to know what would happen "if I refuse."

"If you refuse," answered the censor, "I shall be obliged, to my deepest mortification, to interrupt your publication."

M. Capus also told an anecdote of a war correspondent of the Figaro in 1870 who asked a certain general to be allowed to approach the operations so as to obtain a better view. The general refused the request, whereupon the correspondent retorted, "Then I shall not mention your battle in my paper."

Royalty on Firing Line.

A dispatch to the London Daily News from an unnamed point in France describes a visit of the Prince of Wales to the firing line.

"A major led the way," it says, "and immediately behind was a short, slight figure clad in regulation khaki. He was wearing a 'British warm' with the collar turned up and a Sam Brown belt and revolver. His boots were covered with mud.

"Following were two or three staff officers. The major explained the nature of the defenses at this point and then from a spy hole pointed out the German lines about 500 yards distant, with our front line trenches between. Occasional bullets cracked overhead, and the Prince of Wales was actually on the firing line. He listened eagerly to the explanations, and after a stay of a few minutes the party returned."

"Hen Wlad Fy Nhadau!"

An English soldier writing from the trenches near Dixmude says:

"It was a miserable night. A heavy rain had filled the trenches. Suddenly out of the darkness came a voice. It was a Welsh ballad called 'Hob y Dert Dando,' sung in a fine tenor voice. It was the cheeriest sound I ever heard. At the end a round of applause came down the trenches. But imagine our surprise to hear clapping and calls for more in good English from the German trenches. Thereupon the Welshman gave 'Mintra Gwen.'

RUSSIAN PRISONERS OF WAR.

"Meanwhile we realized that not a shot had been fired by either side during the song. We had forgotten all about war. So a bargain was struck with the Germans that if the Welshman would give us another song neither side would fire any more until daylight.

"The third song was 'Hen Wlad Fy Nhadau.' It was perhaps the first time the Welsh national anthem was ever heard on this dismal Flemish morass."

Military Millinery Hit.

A special dispatch received by the Berlin Tageblatt from Brussels says the latest craze in millinery, Belgian soldiers' caps, has attained such great popularity there that the German authorities have had to confiscate the new style of headgear from hundreds of women and to forbid the further use of such caps.

The soldiers' wives and sweethearts had discarded the flags and other national color adornments and adopted the caps of cavalymen and carabinieri, which they tilted at a rakish angle. The fad threatened to create a public nuisance, as the wearing of the caps by the women caused outbreaks of patriotic enthusiasm at every turn. The women took the confiscation good naturedly, the milliners being the only ones to grieve.

A Sea Holdup.

"The captain of the Dutch steamer Helena has described to me how his ship was held up forty miles from Haaks lightship in the North sea by a German airship which descended near the sea and hoisted signals ordering the steamer to heave to," writes a correspondent. "The Helena was overhauled by the Zeppelin L.5 at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. It was clear and in the sunshine the airship was seen at a great altitude approaching swiftly from the direction of the coast and rocking like a ship in a rough sea.

"It flew directly over the Helena, whose crew distinctly saw fifteen or twenty persons in three cars which were connected by a covered gangway. The men wore dark, close fitting tunics, caps like hoods and goggles.

"They watched the Helena through glasses in a kind of turret in the forepart of the airship. The crews of a telegraphing gun were at their stations, and the great naval ensign flew at the stern of the gas bag. The airship circled the Helena twice, then appeared to be satisfied and, after exchanging signals, returned in the direction of the coast."

Daily Thought.

The mind that is cheerful in its present state will be adverse to all solicitudes to the future, and will meet the bitter occurrences of life with a placid smile.—Horace.

Speaking of wonderful inventions, the overshadow of Edison is the man—or woman—who invented fire. Our prehistoric ancestors doubtless were familiar with fire from lightning strokes and lava eruptions. But how did they ever get the idea that they could imitate the effects of lightning by rubbing two sticks against each other? It has been observed in recent years that in bamboo forests of southern India branches sometimes are whipped by the wind against each other until they burst into flame. That probably was where the fire inventor got his idea.—Kansas City Star.

The Genius of Language.

It makes a difference with a vengeance what tongue we employ to convey ideas of proper names. Thus, our notion of Vienna, in its assigned and native dwelling place, is Wien. Your Frenchman, insisting that the cockney does not know his own, converts London into Londres.

We superior English speaking schoolmasters, defying birthright and the custom of the ages, make it appear that Roma is merely monosyllabic Roma; that Venetia is Venice; that Koeln is Cologne, and so on through the world.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back It
Natural Color, Gloss and Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the is to get the ready-to-use tonic, cost-Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way ing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

ITALY DEMANDS TRENTE, TRIESTE

Wants Austria to Return "Unredeemed" Territory.

HAS ITALIAN POPULATION.

First Part of Territory Forms Wedge Penetrating Italy Between Lombardy and Venetia. While Second Includes Peninsula of Istra and Runs North to the Julian Alps.

What is commonly referred to in the dispatches as Trent and Trieste, representing the demands of Italy, stand in the Italian mind for the territory south of a line drawn in the Rhaetian Alps, where Italy, Switzerland and Austria meet, eastward to the Carnic Alps, and then southward along the Julian Alps and again eastward so as to include Fiume.

The first part of the territory forms a wedge penetrating Italy between Lombardy and Venetia and cutting Lake Garda, while the second includes the peninsula of Istra and runs north to the Julian Alps, and the Save rivers.

The territory indicated is called "Unredeemed Italy" (Italia Irredenta) because it all once formed part of the Italian states of the middle ages and because the majority of the population are Italians in all things but nationality. For the same reasons the Dalmatian islands are also considered to be a part of "Italia Irredenta."

Although the city of Trent indicates to foreign readers the entire wedge, this wedge is known in Italy as the Trentino because the whole region once formed the Roman colony of Tridentum, which in 1027 passed under the rule of a bishop, and then after various changes came under the rule of Austria, together with Lombardy and Venetia.

Wedge Ever Present Menace.

After the defeat of Austria in 1859 by Piedmont and France and even after Piedmont had taken over Lombardy and the kingdom of Italy had been formed in 1861 Austria continued to hold Venetia until her defeat in the Austro-Germanic war of 1866 gave it to Italy, but left the wedge as an ever present menace—the point of the wedge is only twenty miles from Verona and Vienna.

Istria, a margravate of Austria, is called so from the mistake of the ancient Romans in believing that the Danube—in Greek the Ister—emptied here. In Roman days it was the home of Illyrian pirates, subdued by Rome in 177 B. C. It belonged to Venice until the peace of Campo Formio in 1797 abolished the republic of Venice and gave it to Austria, together with Dalmatia and its islands in the eastern Adriatic. In 1805 Austria was compelled by Napoleon to cede Istria to France, but in 1813 it was seized by Austria, which has retained it ever since.

Aside from the Dalmatian islands, the territory said to have been demanded by Italy includes about 8,000 square miles, with more than 1,000,000 population.

Although the Trentino has a sentimental as well as a predominating strategic value for Italy, Istria, with the naval stations of Pola and Fiume and the great commercial city of Trieste, would not only give her undisputed control of the Adriatic, but place in her hands a large part of the trade of central Europe for distribution in the Mediterranean and the east. Germany has long coveted Istria.

SOOTHES TOOTH; FIRES BED.

Throbbing Molar Cured by Electric Light Bulb, but with Dire Results.

John Wolf, a rural mail carrier, of Ebersburg, Pa., has demonstrated that an electric light bulb will cure a toothache and then some. Wolf was walking the floor with a toothache of the jumping kind when the bright idea struck him. Wrapping a towel around an electric light bulb attached to a long cord, he got into bed, pressing the bulb against the aching molar as a warming pad. The device worked magically. The suffering stopped, and Wolf fell asleep.

Shortly after midnight the mail carrier dreamed there was a fire and that he was fighting his way through smoke and flames. He sprang to find the bed burning. He sprang to safety and gave the alarm, but before firemen arrived the house was almost gutted.

TEACHER LETS BOYS FIGHT.

Puts Them In His Office and Watches Battle.

How one boy was seriously injured as a result of the action of Principal W. D. Robinson of the Garfield school at Kenwood Springs, St. Louis county, Mo., in taking two boys into his office to let them fight while he looked on, was told by Louis O'Gier, whose son, Oliver, is in bed suffering from injuries sustained in the fight.

Oliver O'Gier and Charles Benson traded blows and a fight followed, in which the Benson lad came out a victor.

Then, Mr. O'Gier alleged, the principal moved his desk and chairs, put the boys in his office and invited them to fight it out.

The Scrap Book

Reversed the Verdict.

A prominent citizen of a large town went raging into the electric light company's office and declared that one of their wires had killed a pet tree on his premises.

"That tree," said he, "has been standing there for twenty years, and we regarded it as one of the family. My children played under it when they were babies, and it is associated with some of the pleasantest memories of my life. When it began to die we all mourned, and we could not imagine what ailed it until yesterday, when I noticed that a wire was lying right across a branch. My poor tree has been electrocuted, and I feel as if murder has been done in my house."

Considerably moved, the agent of the company went to view the scene of the tragedy and found the tree still alive, but feeble. When he came to trace the wire he discovered one end nailed to the roof of an old barn and the other twisted around a discarded pole. It had been cut off for at least two years and forgotten. But the occasion demanded something, so he made the following report:

"Tree alive; wire dead. Wire evidently killed by tree. Bill inclosed."

The Look.

Look up and not down. There is never a crown above us.

The crown that makes glory complete.

Face the east, not the west. You are not at your best.

With your eyes set on stars, sinking low, but each rising star's ray, with its promise of day.

Will kindle your heart to a glow.

—Alexander Blackburn.

He Was "It."

When my wife and I were on our honeymoon we were advised to visit a certain ruined castle, the custodian of which was a relative of the noble owner. Having viewed the glorious old pile, I was at a loss how and in what way to offer a gratuity, bearing in mind the "blue blood" of our guide. The following conversation took place:

"We thank you for your courtesy and would be glad to give a small sum to any cause if you have a box for that purpose."

"Sir," was the reply, "I have a box."

"Then may I see it?" I asked. "Sir," with a pleasant smile and a bow, "I am the box."

—Strand Magazine.

In Hot Water.

"Typographical errors," said a writer, "are continually cropping up. I called for a magazine editor the other day to take him out to luncheon. As he was getting gratefully into his coat a man entered."

"Do you read your magazine?" the man asked.

"I do," replied the editor.

"Have you read the new number, the one that came out yesterday?"

"I have."

"Have you read my poem, 'To Gabrielle,' on page 117?"

"No."

"No? Well, in that poem I wrote the line, 'I love you better than I love my life.'"

"A neat line—neat and well turned," said the editor soothingly.

"And one of the professional humorists of your composing room set it up to read, 'I love you better than I love my wife.'"

"How—er—"

"Then my wife—precisely that. And my wife knows nothing of composing room comedy, and she thinks the line was printed exactly as I wrote it."

Witty Foreman.

The foreman of a jury which sat in a New England courtroom possessed a ready wit that served him well in an encounter with a judge of brilliant attainments.

The judge, although a man of abrupt speech and manner, possessed a quick sense of humor. The foreman was late one day, only a few minutes late, but even that was sufficient to irritate his honor, as he afterward owned.

"I overslept, your honor," said the foreman, with due meekness, as he took his seat.

"Fine him," said the judge testily.

"May it please your honor," said the foreman quickly, "I did not dream of that."

"Remit the fine," said the judge, bidding his mouth with his hand for a moment, but his eyes betrayed him for all that.—Case and Comment.

The Ruling Passion.

George Bernard Shaw, the author and playwright, tells this story of a cricket match which took place in his native town not long ago.

"The match, married men versus single men, was in progress," avers Mr. Shaw. "The marrieds had closed with a total of 27, toward which Jones, the local grocer, had contributed a lucky 20. Scarcely had the 'single' commenced to bat when the startling news of a local train disaster reached the ground, whereupon Jones evinced a worried look."

"What's the matter, Jones?" queried the captain.

"Well, Jones replied reflectively, 'my wife was on that train.'"

"Too bad, old man. I'm sorry," murmured the captain, greatly touched.

"In that case, of course, you want to get away at once?"

"Oh, no; it isn't that," explained Jones. "But, you see, if anything has happened to Annie I ought to be playing for the 'single chaps.'"

SCHWAB'S CAR AND TRAINMEN

To Comply With Law Reading Had to Put Extra Man on Train.

South Bethlehem, Pa., March 24. Specific instances of the arbitrary working of the Pull Crew—"Excess Man Crew"—Laws have just been afforded here. They show how these laws work to the burden of the railroads and how they are sometimes availed of by trainmen to prevent efficient service.

A four-car passenger train was made up on the Reading Railway about to leave for Philadelphia. Under a hurry order the "L.C." private car of Charles M. Schwab, was attached to this train at the last minute. This made it necessary, in order to comply with the Pull Crew Law, to increase the train crew from five to six men, although the private car had its own crew and made nothing for the train crew to look after.

It so happened that a trainman was in one of the coaches, returning to Philadelphia. He was instructed to take the position of extra man. Thus instead of riding to Philadelphia as a "dead head," he became a member of the crew and received pay for the trip.

On the Lehigh Valley Railroad a train of empty cars had been made up by a yard crew. When the road crew of five took charge a trainman was seen to cut out the last car, which happened to be a foreign line box car. When asked why, he replied that they weren't going to take a train longer than required. The effect was to leave a box car in the yard, entailing a per diem charge upon the company.

The above article is furnished by the railroads in their efforts for the repeal of the Pull Crew Bill.

A TIMELY GIFT.

It Wasn't Much, but It Meant a Great Deal to Dr. Anna Shaw.

When Dr. Anna Howard Shaw was studying theology in Boston she was very poor and had to depend on the little preaching she did to pay her expenses. After a week's hard work at a revival, for which she received no money, she was heart-sick and discouraged. She tells the story thus in the Metropolitan Magazine:

"I was friendless, penniless and starved, but it was not of these conditions that I thought then. The one overwhelming fact was that I had been weighed and found wanting. I was not worthy."

I stumbled along, passing blindly a woman who stood near the church entrance. She stopped me timidly and held out her hand. Then suddenly she put her arms around me and wept. She was an old lady, and I did not know her, but it seemed fitting that she should cry just then, as it would have seemed fitting to me if at that black moment all the people on the earth had broken into sudden weeping.

"Oh, Miss Shaw," she said, "I'm the happiest woman in the world, and I owe my happiness to you! Tonight you have converted my grandson. He's all I have left, but he has been a wild boy, and I've prayed over him for years. Hereafter he is going to lead a different life. He has just given me his promise on his knees."

Her hand fumbled in her purse.

"I am a poor woman," she went on, "but I have enough, and I want to make you a little present. I know how hard life is for you young students."

She pressed a bill into my fingers. "It's very little," she said humbly; "it is only $5."

I laughed, and in that exultant moment I seemed to hear life laughing with me. With the passing of the bill from her hand to mine existence had become a new experience, wonderful and beautiful.

"It is the biggest gift I have ever had," I told her. "This little bill is big enough to carry my future on its back!"

She smiled.

He Took It.

While James H. Board, the artist, was painting a portrait of Zachary Taylor he said to him, "Well, general I suppose you are to be our next president?"

"I hope not," grunted the bluff old hero. "No military man has any business in the presidential chair, but if they offer it to me I suppose I'll be fool enough to accept it."

And he was.

PARTYCHIEFS BALK AT LOCAL OPTION

McNichol, Crow and McClain Oppose the Measure.

PLAIN TALK WITH GOVERNOR

Organization Leaders Take Firm Stand Against the Bill and May Break With Brumbaugh.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 24.—The executive mansion probably never resounded with straight-from-the-shoulder talk equal in candor to that which passed between Governor Brumbaugh and Republican organization leaders of the senate.

Local option was the particular bone of contention, with proposed child labor legislation in second place, workmen's compensation third, and the advisability of a constitutional convention a poor fourth.

Governor Brumbaugh was "informed" that his wish that the Williams local option bill stay in the law and order committee of the house until April 6 would be deferred to the organization, but that it was not and would not be accepted as an organization measure.

The strained relations between the governor and these senate leaders, growing out of their attitude to the Brumbaugh program was not appreciably eased by anything that occurred later.

It developed that Senator Vare was much more conciliatory as respects the governor's uncompromising stand on local option than other potent organization senators, and his inclination to "stand by the governor" even reached out to child labor, workmen's compensation and other measures making up the Brumbaugh legislative program.

The position taken by Senators McNichol and Crow, who are committed without reservation to a more "conservative" program than that insisted upon by the governor, is that the latter ought to recognize that responsibility for legislation at this session does not rest upon his shoulders alone, but is fully shared with the leaders of the party whose candidate he was.

Republican senators say that they will do all in their power to avert a break with Governor Brumbaugh, short of an unconditional surrender to his proposal that he be permitted to shape, without let or hindrance, the legislature's course.

These senators, while hopeful that Governor Brumbaugh will recede from his position, broadly intimated that should it be necessary to "explain to the people" their position would not suffer by comparison with any case that the governor can make out.

Senator Crow, chairman of the Republican state committee, declared that he would not vote for or support a local option measure. Senator Sprout also declared that he could not attach the importance to local option given to it by the governor.

It was to no purpose, so far as moving the senators at the conference, Governor Brumbaugh insisted that the Republican party in Pennsylvania would subject itself to certain defeat all along the line in 1916 if the pledge to pass a local option measure was not redeemed by the present legislature.

Governor Brumbaugh gave as one of the reasons for wanting the Williams bill kept in committee until April 6, on which day he asked that a public hearing be given to persons for and against local option, that he "wanted certain people to be heard who had engagements that would prevent them from appearing at an earlier date."

"I see no objection to putting off the public hearing until April 6," Senator McNichol observed in substance. "Let there be an all-day hearing and an all-night hearing, if necessary, and then submit the question to the members of the house and let the result be what it may."

SAYS U. S. HAS NOT INDORSED JAPAN

Chinese Policy Neither Approved or Disapproved.

Washington, March 24.—President Wilson declared that the only definite thing that could be said at this time on the Japanese-Chinese negotiations was that the United States had addressed an inquiry to Japan concerning her demands on China.

The president declined to discuss the scope of the American government's communication. When asked, however, whether Tokio dispatches were correct in saying the American government had inquired about "minor points," the president made it clear that he did not consider the points of a minor character.

Another dispatch from Tokio stating that the United States had approved of Japan's explanation of the demands was brought to the president's attention, and he referred to it as unfounded, pointing out that the United States had neither approved nor disapproved—having, in fact, not yet received Japan's reply.

MIGHTY MAUNA LOA.

This Gigantic Volcano Is a Worthy Rival to Vesuvius.

The lofty volcanoes of the Hawaiian Islands, rising above the ocean from 5,000 to nearly 14,000 feet, are only the summits of gigantic mountain masses that rise abruptly from the bottom of the Pacific. Mauna Loa, on the island of Hawaii, stands 13,679 feet above sea level, but its slopes descend beneath the sea, as shown by deep sea soundings, with a grade fully equal to if not greater than that of the visible slopes. The same is generally true of the submarine slopes of other islands, and the depths attained by these continuous slopes, within thirty to fifty miles of the shores, vary from 14,000 to 19,000 feet. Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea, if their true bases are considered to be at the bottom of the Pacific, are therefore mountains of as great an altitude as Mount Everest, or approximately 30,000 feet. In general the Hawaiian Island group consists of summits of a gigantic submarine mountain chain which projects only its loftier peaks and domes above the water. On the island of Hawaii the volcanic forces are still in operation.

The one continuously active volcanic vent of the island is Kilauea, far down on the eastern flank of Mauna Loa—"the great mountain." No other volcano in the world approaches Mauna Loa in the vastness of its mass or in the magnitude of its eruptive activity. There are many volcanic peaks higher in the air, but most of them are planted upon elevated platforms, where they appear as mere cones of greater or less size. It is not yet known at what level the base of Mauna Loa is situated, but it is below the sea, probably far below.

Mauna Kea—"the white mountain"—is also a colossus among volcanoes. Its summit, 13,825 feet, is a trifle higher than that of Mauna Loa, but its slopes are steeper, and its base is therefore much smaller. The magnitude of Mauna Loa is due chiefly to the great area of its base, which is nearly elliptical in shape, with a major diameter of seventy-four miles and a minor diameter of fifty-three miles, measured at sea level.

In the aggregate of its eruptions Mauna Loa is also unrivaled. Some of the volcanoes of Iceland have been known to disgorge at a single outbreak masses of lava fully equal to those of Mauna Loa. But such outbursts are infrequent in Iceland, and a century has elapsed since any of such magnitude have occurred, though there have been several minor eruptions. The eruptions of Mauna Loa are all of great volume and occur irregularly, at an average interval of about eight years. In view of the total quantity of material it has disgorged during the last century no other volcano is at all comparable to it.—From a Bulletin of the United States Geological Survey.

Casting Metals.

As is well known, some metals are unsuitable for casting, while others, like iron, can readily be cast in any desired shape. The property of casting well is said to depend upon whether the metal contracts or expands on solidifying from the liquid form. Iron, like water, expands in solidifying, and hence the solid metal may be seen floating in the liquid iron about it. The expansion causes it to fill the die into which it is poured, and so it can be cast easily. Gold and silver contract in cooling and therefore are not suitable for casting.—Exchange.

What Gives Milk Its Color?

Recent experiments show that the color of milk is chiefly due to the presence of carotin, a coloring matter found abundantly in green plants, especially in grass. The yellow pigments of our bodies also consist of carotin, which is probably derived chiefly from our food.

Cultivate Habit of Laughter.

Laughter is a quickening, healthful life impulse. Try it. Its best recommendation is in itself. It vitalizes the blood, improves the digestion, tranquilizes the troubled spirit, and corrects the astigmatic vision which gives us a distorted view of life.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

PIQUANT RHUBARB.

THE sprightly flavor of the rhubarb makes it a favorite with nearly every one. Its medicinal qualities are well known, the acid being especially beneficial in the springtime. Here are several formulas for preparing rhubarb which will meet with much favor when tried.

Rhubarb and Prune Sauce.

This makes a delicious combination, the acid of the rhubarb being an offset to the mild flavored prune. Wash the prunes well and put them into clean, cold water to soak overnight, using no more water than what the prunes will absorb. In the morning add twice the quantity of rhubarb cut in small pieces, place all in a double boiler and cook until perfectly tender. Sugar to suit the taste should be added shortly before removing from the fire. Or, the fruit may be placed in a covered dish, set in a pan of boiling water in the oven and baked until tender, or placed in the fireless cooker.

Plain Stewed Rhubarb.

If very tender young stalks are used they will not need peeling, simply washing thoroughly, but if the skin is tough it must be removed except where the stewed fruit is to be rubbed through a sieve or strainer, as in certain of the recipes. Cut the stalks in very short pieces and stew in a small quantity of water, adding a good piece of dried orange or lemon peel when perfectly tender add sugar to taste, removing the lemon peel, and let stand for a few minutes longer.

Rhubarb Dessert.

Cook one quart of finely chopped rhubarb in a very little water until soft, press through a sieve, sweeten to taste, flavor with lemon extract, or stew a few slices of lemon with the rhubarb and let get very cold. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff with two tablespoons of powdered sugar, whisk lightly into the sifted rhubarb, dust the top with sugar and sprinkle with finely chopped almonds and serve at once.

Rhubarb Jelly With Whipped Cream.

Cut one pound of rhubarb into short pieces and put in a granite baking pan with one cupful of sugar, the thin yellow rind clipped from half a lemon and one and one-half inches of ginger root. Cover and bake until tender. Have one-half ounce of gelatin soaked in one-half cupful of cold water until soft, add it to the rhubarb, set the dish in a pan of boiling water and stir until thoroughly dissolved; add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and pour all into a fancy mold that has been dipped in cold water. Keep on ice until time to serve; then turn out on a glass dish, fill the center with whipped cream and place small mounds of it around the jelly.

Rhubarb Sponge.

Stew some rhubarb and strain off the juice. To one pint of juice add about one-half ounce of gelatin soaked in a little cold water until softened, stir until dissolved, then sweeten to taste and add any flavoring desired. When the rhubarb begins to thicken whisk in the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs and beat thoroughly.

Negro Bouts For Wisconsin.

Negro boxers will be permitted to engage in contests with each other before boxing clubs in Wisconsin, but no bouts between white and negro contestants will be allowed, according to a ruling of the Wisconsin boxing commission, after having consulted with the attorney general. This ruling rescinds a former order, which forbade bouts between negroes in Wisconsin.

Naps to Be Indians in Future.

The Cleveland American league baseball team will hereafter be known as the "Indians." It was decided at a meeting of the club officials and baseball writers. The name "Naps" became obsolete when Napoleon Lajoie went to the Athletics. It was also decided at the meeting to agree on "Spiders" as a name for the Cleveland American association team.

Mystery About Precious Stones.

That the diamond and other precious stones were made in the unfathomed and fiery caves of earth and brought to the surface by volcanic or other upheaval, is well established, especially in regard to those of the South African fields; but more mysterious than this is that they have been found in the paths of the ancient glacial drifts of North America. They are held to be very vaguely related to all crystalline forms which are others of the mysteries.

Her Preference.

Marie Caslova, the violinist, tells of a reception at which she was to be the soloist, which was given by a woman whose sudden wealth had not brought her musical knowledge. "When I called her up five hours before the reception to ask about the condition of the piano she exclaimed: 'I sent the piano back to the factory last week for repairs. Can't you play something with out one?'"

"The only things I had at my fingers' ends for violin alone were some Bach sonatas. This gave me an inspiration. 'Certainly,' I answered, 'I can play the Chaconne.'"

"After a moment's silence a disappointed voice replied, 'But, my dear, I would so much rather you played the violin.'"

A Question of Fact.

The judge decided that certain evidence was inadmissible. Counsel took strong exception to the ruling and insisted that it was admissible.

"I know, your honor," said counsel warmly, "that it is proper evidence. Here I have been practicing at the bar for forty years, and now I want to know if I am supposed to be a fool?"

"That," quietly replied the judge, "is a question of fact and not of law, so I won't pass any opinion upon it, but will let the jury decide."

A Tragic Coincidence.

In 1865 a German predicted that he would be a victim of a war that would take place in 1896. The war occurred, but did not affect him. One day forty-two years later he was laughing at his old time prophecy and boasting of his good health. In his happy mood he bought an old cottage from a friend and straightway went to inspect it. In the garden there was a quantity of old iron and among it a shell dating from 1866. He picked it up and was examining it when it exploded, and he was killed on the spot. The prophecy had come true.

Good Advice.

A man advertised recently in a London paper to forward on receipt of postage stamps "sound practical advice that would be applicable at any time and to all persons and conditions of life."

On receipt of the stamps he sent his numerous victims the following: "Never give a boy a penny to hold your shadow while you climb a tree to look into the middle of next week."

A Letter That Came a Day Too Late

By MAY C. ETHERIDGE

Edwin Marmaduke at his death left a large estate. He was a widower with no children, at least no children at home. But no one seemed to know much about him, and, being a reticent man, he kept his past history to himself.

Marmaduke had lived alone in a big house which he had occupied when his wife was living. When he died a nephew who had an eye to his estate went to his house and looked for a will. He found none. This gave the inheritance to the heirs-at-law. The nephew, John Williams, hunted up these persons and found a large number of them. But they were all descendants of the deceased's brothers and sisters, none of whom could claim descent from him direct.

Williams called a meeting of Marmaduke's relatives and told them that unless they took concerted action in the matter the estate was liable to be wasted in chancery. A great many claims might be made by persons who would try to prove falsely that they were related to the deceased. Some of these claims might be allowed, and money might be wasted by the court in disproving others. Of course the matter of the distribution was in the courts, but the heirs would facilitate matters and save wastage by acting together so as to secure a proper distribution of the property.

Among those who attended the meeting was a young girl of sixteen. She took a back seat and listened to what was said without remark, being the only one present who said nothing. She was very poorly dressed and had a hungry look. When those present were requested to step forward and put their names on paper, giving their relationship to the deceased, this girl hung back. Williams, seeing her, asked her if she had any claim on the Marmaduke estate. In reply she said that she had recently arrived in the city from Canada, where she had been discharged from a foundling asylum.

At leaving she had been given the baby clothes she had on when left at the asylum and a letter addressed to Edwin Marmaduke. She had been given money by a director of the institution to go and deliver the letter. On arriving she had inquired where Edwin Marmaduke lived and on reaching the house had found a note on the door. Persons to whom she had told her story informed her of the meeting of the heirs-at-law to Mr. Marmaduke's estate and suggested that she might find out something concerning her mission from some of them.

Williams asked the girl why she did not open the letter, and she replied that it was stated on the envelope that it was to be opened by Edwin Marmaduke and by no other person.

A young man who signed his name Steven Marmaduke and claimed to be a grand-nephew of the deceased noticed the girl and pitied her. She had signed no name on the list of relatives, for she had not come as a claimant, but for information. When the meeting adjourned young Marmaduke joined the girl and asked her if he could do anything for her. She thanked him and said that since the person she had come to see was dead she would return to the place from which she had come. He asked her name, and she said she had no name. At the foundlings' home she had been called Ruth, but this had been given her there to distinguish her from the other orphans.

Steven Marmaduke was much impressed by the story of the girl who had been born into the world under such unfortunate circumstances. He went with her to the house where she was staying, asking her to tell him more about herself. What could she tell? The letter she bore to one who was dead and her baby clothes were all the evidence there was as to her identity. When she had been left at the foundlings' home, whoever had received her had wrapped the letter in the clothes, and there it had remained ever since. On the envelope was written "To be delivered when the child is old enough to act for herself."

Steven Marmaduke advised the girl to open the letter, and she did so in his presence. It read:

"Father—For the love you bore me when I was a child, like my child with me some day hand over this help her, for she is of your own blood. Henry is dead, and my days are numbered. Your daughter, KATE."

When Marmaduke read this letter he turned to the girl with wonder in his eyes and said:

"Rejoice, little one, for you are heiress to a princely estate. Guard well this letter and any other evidence you may have as to your identity."

An investigation proved that the girl was Alice Marmaduke Spencer. Her mother had married in opposition to her father's express command, and he had never forgiven her. Poverty and sickness had come to her and her husband, and just before her death she had sent her child to the foundlings' home.

Learning of his daughter's death, Edwin Marmaduke had endeavored to find her child, but had failed. He had never made a will, hoping that his granddaughter might be found. She had come too late to give the old man an opportunity to benefit her while he lived, but his fortune was ready for her before he was laid in the grave.

Alice Spencer married Steven Marmaduke, and the family name was restored in their children.

Avoid Despair.

If we are to escape the grip of despair, wrote Amiel, we must believe either that the whole of things at least is good, or that grief is a fatherly grace, a purifying ordeal.

DON'T BUY A CAT IN A BAG

His price is anything he can get—his goods are of very uncertain value—his labels don't tell you who the manufacturer is who you can hold responsible if you buy trash. The world swallows him up when he gets your money, you lose.—This may be an extreme example of the back door faker, but it illustrates what goes on daily in a milder form in buying goods without a reliable manufacturer behind them. The result however, is the same—

Truth and Quality

are as necessary to the makers of Nationally Advertised goods as a man's right arm. The reliable home magazines such as Good Housekeeping, will not allow a manufacturer to even infer anything that the product cannot prove up to. Truth underlies the success of every popular Nationally Advertised product. And even if the manufacturer were able to deceive in his ads, if the product did not excel, the wide use that advertising would give them would bring down a nation-wide condemnation from housewives which would put the untruthful manufacturer out of business.
